a london peculiar

Smoke is a 52 page A5 magazine of writing, photography and graphic art inspired by London.

Alongside beautifully presented and evocative images, Smoke uses words – fictional and factual, quirky and melancholy, poetic and humorous – to turn the ordinary into the extraordinary.

Smoke is unashamedly intelligent but not elitist. Sales in high street bookshops are as strong as those in galleries. Its readership spans the city's suburban sprawl, and many readers have become contributors. Their ages range from 14 to 74.

Smoke contains no reviews, listings, or adverts: its London is a city of the mind, and over a third of mail-order copies go outside the M25 – or even across the Atlantic.

Smoke is also very funny.
